

Salon 3 Act structure

- ★ Set-Up: Building context of the characters
 - Rye impulsive, struggling in school, low-income growing up and racialization dynamic
 - Mom, fiery, single, selfless but hides the lengths she goes. Fiercely youthful to a point of immaturity.
 - Daniel, mom's love interest and almost father figure to Rye. Foil to mom

Goal - Rye and Mom saving up for a house in a nicer area, Daniel helping Rye apply to college but he doesn't want to go.

- ★ Plot Point I: ^{Rye} Discovers Mom has cancer and didn't tell him or go to receive treatment.

- ★ Confrontation: Rye strives to complete his and his mom's mission while also trying to find her treatment and apply to college and navigate his senior year. He's having a terrible time, working himself to the bone, and willing to do anything to save her. Daniel helps him. Maybe a love interest he takes advantage of to help as well. Lawn-mowing / landscaping business, sketchy pads

- ★ Plot Point 2: Just as Rye has a system going and his money is going up, everything goes to shit. He gets caught stealing and goes to role interest w/ lawyer daddy for help, then it's revealed he stole from them too. He's so tired while landscaping this old dead lady's house that he falls asleep and crashes her big ass mower. It's damaged so he inish goodbyes and drives away with it (slat across the screen as he loudly drives it across the sidewalk). He gets a concussion or injury from the impact and gets hospitalized. Frame of him in bed next to his mom's bed from the foot. They're arguing across the curtain as she comes at him for being annoyed when she told him to chill. Daniel enters and sits in a chair in between, pulling the curtain back. His mom realizes everything and says "Who have you become?" Mom threatens to stop treatment until Rye makes amends. Big argument about maturity and how she's making it harder on him and how it's not selfless to not care about your own life because she wants to give up. Some in Nicknames? Daniel doesn't understand anything. Daniel wants to be ok with Mom.
- ★ Resolution: ~~Plot~~ Rye creates a strict regimen including sleep to fix everything. Has heart-to-hearts with everyone and they drop the charges. He takes money out of his college funds to pay for everything. Comes back excited that one of his poems/writing stuff Daniel helped him with won some money. Rushes into hospital to share good news. Tons of nwas standing around, she's dead. Fade to funeral where we finish start of film poem about love? I don't like this ending. Will probably change. Ends with slow pan down to show his ^{decorated} graduation cap is atop an all black suit at her funeral. (Bedley)
